Bug Details

You are viewing the details of a bug in status "NEW". This indicates the bug has been reported but it was not yet reviewed and marked for approval or rejection by anyone. "NEW" is the only status that still allows you to "discard" a bug if you notice you reported something out of scope or a duplicate.

Testers submit bugs in a test cycle (after accepting the Test Cycle Agreement on an active test cycle) and then the newly created bugs are listed as "New" status in the issues tab. On test cycles with Test Team Leads (TTLs), your bug may be moved to one temporary state called "Pending". This means that the bug has been recommended to the customer one way or another by a Test Team Lead who ensures that bugs are not duplicates, are in scope and contain all necessary information.

Read more about the bug approval process and our bug reporting FAQ.

Whenever you are viewing a bug that is not created by you, you have the opportunity to contribute a "U" also called a community
